Families are central to child safety and well-being, and they need support. All families can benefit from information, guidance, and help in connecting with resources as they meet the challenges of parenthood and family life. One program, Project Uplift, pairs a child with a mentoring adult in a big brother/big sister way. Just one smile from "little sister" Amiah lets Project Uplift volunteer Elizabeth know that the time she gives is important and that she is making a difference. The United Way of Lee County realizes that a commitment to families and children has enormous implications on future generations. Your investment in mentoring programs, like Project Uplift, as well as child development and parenting programs helps to assure the safety and security of children and families in years to come. We need your help. Join us! Be part of the solution. GIVE. ADVOCATE. VOLUNTEER. LIVE UNITED
