

HOW I LIVE UNITED

My name is Krystal. I'm a senior at Auburn University in biomedical sciences. Project Uplift and United Way have helped me continue the volunteerism I started at the age of 12. I serve as a Big Sister to two young girls and am planning a talent show for Auburn athletes. Giving back is the key to success for generations to come. Volunteering is especially important for me because you get to help others. You learn about other people. You learn how to communicate. You learn things about yourself and you help with the problems in your community. Living United is part of my personal definition of success.
